Instructions: If you can do the following 3 steps perfectly, you can receive up to a percentage TBD (usually 50%) of the points you missed back on your test:

1. For any question you answered incorrectly, re-work the entire problem out step by step, and highlight your final (hopefully correct) answer. You must be neat about this, and please go in order. Don't jump around. If you answered questions 1, 3, and 9 incorrectly, don't start with 3. Re work 1, then 3, then 9. If your test corrections are not neat, you risk not earning any points back, even if your work is correct.

2. Number the question(s) you are re working.

3. Do not write on the original test nor your original work. Your test corrections should be on another sheet(s) of paper. Also, you choose which test questions you want to re-work. For example if you answered 1, 3 and 9 incorrectly, you do not have to re work 3 if you do not want to.
